Cellular Enzyme activation through Xeronine System

Xeronine is an enzyme and is an important factor for proteins to be absorbed and utilized by our cells to perform their functions.

Proxeronine is precursor to Xeronine, which body converts into Xeronine

Proteins may not be utilized properly and may become Cross Reactive due to lack of Xeronine.

These Cross Reactive Proteins are harmful for the body and are considered modern biomarker of all inflammatory and autoimmune disorders measured as CRP status of body.

Every food provides us two components:-

- Enzymatic component
- Functional component

Enzymatic component in food provides us Proxeronine which is being damaged due to depleted soil, chemical fertilizers and modern cooking systems.

VATISAR is a rich source of Proxeronine. On consuming, body convert it to Xeronine which helps proteins to be completely utilized. This improves the energy production, maintenance and growth of cells. Hence improves the nutritional status of the body to fight against chronic degenerative and inflammatory diseases.
